From Chattanooga.

CHATTANOOGA, August 12.

Four Federal couriers bearing dispatches from Gen. Nelson, at McMinnville, to Gen. Buell, have been captured and their dispatches handed over to the military authorities here.

Nelson complains that his pickets habitually desert to be paroled by the Confederates and represent affairs in his department as deplorable.

Important from Arkansas.

CAIRO, Friday Aug. 7, 1862.

The ram Wingo, from Helena, reports that on Saturday a scouting party of 75
Unionists were surprised by 500 of Hind-man's Rebels, and badly cut up, only 20
having saved themselves and escaping.

Forty of Jeff Thompson's men were captured while attempting to cross the river near the town of Austin.

The recent publication of Gen. Pillow's letter to his brother, in regard to the slave of the former, renders interesting the fact that General Curtis has freed all the negroes in question, 25 in number.

Pillow has three plantations near Helena on which all his moveable property was sequestered.

Gen. Curtis has freed at Helena about 3,000 slaves, chiefly those who worked on Forts Pillow and Denslow.

From New Orleans.

MOBILE, Aug. 12.

A special Dispatch to the Advertiser &
Register, dated Jackson, 10th inst., says the New Orleans Delta of the 7th inst. has been received.

Butler levies a Tax on the Corporation and individuals amounting to $312,716.25 cents, to be applied to the support of the poor of New Orleans.

Also, a tax of $23,200 on cotton Brokers, for the same object.

The distinguished attention paid this class of the business community is caused from their having aided the Confederate Government and advised planters to ship
no cotton to New Orleans.

A large amount of property is advertised to be sold for Taxes.

The Delta claims a splendid victory at Baton Rouge. It says the Confederates were in force of from five to fifteen thousand, and that Gen. Lovell has been killed and that Gen. Breckinridge had an arm shot off—that three cannon were captured and those of bayonet charges.

The Delta admits a loss of 250 killed,
but says nothing of the wounded.

Reinforcements had been sent up to Baton Rouge and stirring times were expected—that they intend to bag the whole Confederate army.

James Begg's has been sent to Ship Island.

A batch of Yankee prisoners arrived here this morning.

Our pickets extend within one and a half miles of Baton Rouge.

Valuable Property for Sale.

I will sell at Auction on the 25th inst., to the highest bidder, lot previously sold my HOUSE and LOT, known as the Christal Palace. Possession given immedi-

CHARLOTTE

Wednesday Morning, Aug. 15, 1866.

The News received by Telegraph will be found on the first page.

Our colored carriers are not privileged to sell copies of the Bulletin. Those purchasing from them encourage dishonesty and do us serious injury.

THE BATTLES BEFORE RICHMOND.—We are indebted to the Montgomery Advertiser for the following statement of the killed, wounded and missing of our army in the late battle before Richmond. The Advertiser, of Wednesday, gives the name of each regiment, with its number and losses, and says that its table "has been carefully compiled from various sources, and is, probably, as correct as any statement which is not based on the official figures in the War Department." The following is the recapitulation of the Advertiser's table:

State	Reg't	Killed	Wounded	Missing	Total
Alabama	8-12	252	1040	53	1345
Georgia	1-18	302	1610	39	2551
Florida	8-12	217	1030	39	1286
Louisiana	5-10	128	794	37	959
Mississippi	1-18	217	1030	39	1286
Texas	1-18	217	1030	39	1286
Tennessee	1-18	217	1030	39	1286
Virginia	1-18	217	1030	39	1286

We give this statement of the Advertiser as an approximation to accuracy. From data in our possession, we estimate that it falls from twenty to twenty-five per cent. below the true figures. Our total casualties cannot have been less than 15,000. We are confident they did not materially exceed that number.—Richmond Whig.

From York River.

Our advice from the country bordering on York river (says the Richmond Dispatch), are as late as Saturday last. Up to that period a small force of the enemy continued to occupy a point in New Kent county, known as the "Brick House," but not having visited West Point since the first flight of the gunboats and transports immediately after McClellan "changed his base." They doubtless find more scope for their thievish propensities on the Peninsula between James and York rivers, where a direct communication with Fortress Monroe affords them greater security. Two prominent citizens of Gloucester have lately been arrested by the Confederate authorities for trading with the Yankees, though it is believed that their transactions were prompted rather by cupidity than by any design of returning to "their allegiance under the old flag." Such men are found in every community, and it is perhaps well enough to make an example of them. Many of the people of that county, heretofore in comfortable circumstances, are now suffering for the want of necessities of life, and have no means of purchasing. Not long since, two runaway negroes boldly returned to Gloucester for the purpose of carrying off their families, but unexpectedly fell into a trap, were secured, and brought to Richmond with their wives and numerous offspring. A good many persons, taking warning by the experience of others, are sending their negro property to market, or to some place in the interior where they will be less exposed to the temptations of the perfidious enemy.

Plain talk for the Yankees.

The Westover correspondent of the Philadelphia "Inquirer" writes in the following plain style, under date of July 28th: "Our soldiers at his point are looking anxiously North for the promised reinforcements. There is not a private in the army that does not know if we are not reinforced we are at a dead lock. It is a notorious fact that it was known in the North, as much as in the South, that Beauregard was reinforcing the Confederate Army by sending Richmond. No notice was taken of it North. The result is known."

Holding public meetings does very well to keep up a war excitement; but we want something more substantial—we want men. The States should go at once into drafting. It is the only proper way to effect a force sufficiently large to prove of effect. The slow process of recruiting 300,000 men will be the ruin of the army, without they come up faster than they have been doing, according to the newspaper reports. We must be reinforced largely, or all is lost.

Description of Warrenton and Little Washington.

We find the annexed sketches of the above named places in the New York "Herald," of the 4th inst.

Warrenton, the present headquarters of General Pope, is a post village, and capital of Fauquier county, Va., situated 106 miles northwesterly from Richmond, at the termination of the Warrenton branch of the Orange and Alexandria Railroad. It contains a court house, a jail, a town hall, three churches—Episcopal, Presbyterian and Methodist—two excellent academies—one for males and one for females—a large number of stores, a weekly newspaper, &c. The number of inhabitants is about 1,400. The Orange and Alexandria Railroad to this point is in good running order, although the guerrillas, of whom there are a few in this vicinity, have at various times tried to break the connection. General Pope, however, keeps a vigilant eye on their proceedings, and, with so energetic a commander at the head of this department, no fears of a lasting reverse need be entertained.

Little Washington, which came into Gen. Pope's possession not long since, is a small town of about four hundred inhabitants. It is a mere post village, in Rappahannock county, Va., one hundred and twenty-three miles northwesterly from Richmond. It is situated at the foot of the Blue Ridge Mountains, and contains a court house, jail, an academy, one church (ruined in common by all denominations), few stores, and various mechanical shops.

In the vicinity are two extensive flouring mills, from which is obtained the very best quality of the celebrated "Haxall" flour.

Returned South.

From the Federalist Express.

Among the recent arrivals in this city from Yankee land, is the Rev. A. J. Witherspoon, of Lincoln, Marengo, Ala. Mr. W. is a native of Port Johnson, Sandusky Island, Ohio, having left there on the 4th instant. He is chaplain of the 21st Alabama Regiment, and was taken prisoner at Shiloh, on the second day of that great fight, while humbly ministering to the necessities of the wounded Yankees as well as Confederates. He was carried before Gen. Bell, who, although informed by Mr. W. that he was a minister of the gospel, and a non-combatant, having neither pistol, cut sword, nor bowie knife, persistently refused to release him, but sent him along with all the wounded Confederates to Pittsburg Landing. Mr. W. stopped a while at St. Louis; then at Camp Douglas, near Chicago; next at Camp Chase, Columbus, Ohio; and was next sent to Sandusky Island, where the day of his captivity ended. He says he met with warm friends everywhere, but especially at St. Louis and at Columbus. At the latter place, Mrs. Judge Clark was unremitting in her attentions to the sick and wounded, and caused to be prepared daily, such delicacies and luxuries, as she knew would be acceptable to the soldiers, and much delinquent prisoners. The residents of these much needed attentions, will ever cherish with fond recollection the kindness of this noble woman. Mr. W. thinks there are many in the northwest who would gladly close this war immediately, were it in their power to do so, while others openly denounce us, and invoke curses upon the heads of the Southern people for having broken up the great and good government on earth, and insulted the glorious old flag, which once waved over the land of the free and home of the brave. They dwell with great feeling and emphasis on our lack of respect for the Constitution, losing sight of the fact, that the recently named, who nominated Lincoln at Chicago, were the first violators of obligations imposed by the Constitution, and that every act of their long-legend, selfish looking chief, since he went into power, has been nothing but a violation of that Constitution, about which they now prate so loudly. Mr. Witherspoon is looking well, after his long confinement, and says his treatment, which has not been as kind as it might have been, has nevertheless been much better than that represented by prisoners from Fort Delaware. He was not furnished transportation until he reached Fortress Monroe, where Gen. Dix had him forwarded to city Point, free of charge. The examining officer at the Fortress, seized a carpet bag filled with a bible and late northern and western papers, declaring the bag and contents contraband.

Mr. Witherspoon has kindly furnished us with the following list of North Carolina officers now confined as prisoners of war near Sandusky, Ohio:

- C. M. Avery, Col. 33d N. C.
- Samuel D. Lowe, Major 25th N. C.
- Oscar R. Rany, Capt. 26th N. C.
- W. H. A. Speer, Capt. 28th N. C.
- S. N. Stowe, Capt. 28th N. C.
- Geo. B. Johnson, Capt. 28th N. C.
- D. W. Brown, Capt. 15th N. C.
- T. W. Mahew, Capt. 23d N. C.
- W. F. Farthing, Capt. 37th N. C.
- J. W. Vinson, 3d Lieut. 26th N. C.
- Niel Bohannon, 1st Lieut. 28th N. C.
- Calvin Scott, 2d Lieut. 28th N. C.
- R. A. Hauser, 1st Lieut. 33d N. C.
- Jas A. Weston, 1st Lieut. 33d N. C.
- John N. Anderson, 2d Lieut. 33d N. C.
- R. L. Steele, 1st Lieut. 37th N. C.
- W. A. Stuart, 2d Lieut. 37th N. C.
- J. S. Rogers, 2d Lieut. 37th N. C.
- J. S. Post, 1st Lieut. 37th N. C.
- Woodbury Wheeler, 1st Lieut. Latham's Battery.
- Chas. R. Brown, 3d Lieut. A. Richmond, Va.

These officers are all well, and confidently expecting to be soon restored to their respective commands, on a "general exchange."

SUPPOSED BY CAPTURED.—A man named Wm. A. Joyner, a resident of Norfolk, Va., who, during the occupation of that place by the Confederate troops, made himself so very obnoxious to all the loyal inhabitants that he had to adjourn in disguise to the Eastern Shore, has recently been unmasked here in Richmond by Captain Alexander's detectives; the circumstances surrounding him, inducing the belief that he was induced by the promise of a large reward to come here and act the part of a spy for Lincoln. If this was his object, his design has been nipped in the bud. He is now safe under lock and key in Castle Gwynne. It is said that after the hasty withdrawal from Norfolk of our forces under General Huger, Joyner returned to that place and aided the Lincolnians in the penetration they set on foot against the loyal inhabitants which has continued to the present time. To afford completely this fellow Joyner had identified himself with the enemies of his country. It may be mentioned that there was found on his person, besides evidence that he had taken the oath of allegiance to the Yankee Government, a permit signed by Gen. Veale, Military Governor of Norfolk allowing him, as a "loyal subject," to visit Fortress Monroe and other places temporarily under the control of Old Abe's followers. The prisoner will soon be tried before the Court Martial, when he will be called on to explain the reason of his presence amongst the "rebels."

The Duty of the Hour.—The South in this War.—The Prospect.—What shall be done.

The New York Independent has an article on the Administration and the conduct of the war, of which the following are the substance.

In the beginning of this great struggle the question among loyal men, was, how shall we save the nation? One year of fighting and the question is, whether we can save it. That is the question of today.

We do not write to blame, but to judge. Unless we are wiser than we have been, we have outlived our nation. Look at facts.

The South has had more than a year of civil and military; she has had sagacity. After Mr. Lincoln's election not one single State, except South Carolina, cast a popular majority for secession. Yet every State seceded except Delaware, Maryland and Kentucky. There was a divided public mind, a large undertone. Union feeling in the South even after the war began.

It is absurd to talk of any such thing now. There never was such a revolution of popular feeling on record. Dillies has become hatred. With insignificant exceptions, the South is a unit in intense and unchangeable hatred of the North. By volunteers, by drafting, and by conscription she has placed in the field an extraordinary force.

With all her resources sealed, with no important foundries, straightened for every single element in the manufacture of munitions and equipments the South has armed her men so fearfully that our men must rather lie behind breastworks than meet them in the field. Acquainted to import from the North almost every article of living, the South has become in a day the manufacturer of iron, of cloth, of wood, of leather, enough, at least, for all military purposes. Combined with a dangerous population of four million slaves, whose instincts, interests, and secret wishes are wholly or largely adverse, the South has extracted from this element a double power, moral and physical. Playing upon the political superstition of the North, she has hindered its movements at every step by interposing the slavery question—knowing that for two generations men had been educated to yield everything—principle, interest, patriotism—rather than meddle with "Southern rights" of slavery.

What has been the fruit of this years conduct? We are not so near a settlement as we were at the beginning. The South, with all her losses, and under difficulties that would have appalled and disheartened any common people, is more united, has a larger army in the field—more comfortably provided for, and better managed—than she had a year ago.

The South is more formidable to-day than she was when she beleaguered Washington, held Tennessee, Missouri and half of Kentucky. She is united, while every day the leaves of old malignant political parties is working disaffection to the bottom in the North.

The South has simplicity and unity of purpose. The North is uncertain which she wishes most—to subdue the rebellion, to leave slavery unharmed, or to have the right President at the next election!

The South adjusts every question and postpones every interest in favor of arms. The North is busy with conflicting schemes and interests, and is also mildly carrying on war.

Does anybody doubt the result of such a course? It is so certain that it is not worth our while to waste another man or another dollar. Either the administration policy should instantly change, or the war cease! It is not more rigor so much as different internal ideas. If the administration cannot be disenchanted of the traditional policy that has grown up during the heartless, timid, compromising era of the last half century, and adopt the simple and straight-forward policy that becomes a people striving for liberty and free institutions upon the American continent, then we are doomed! It is war that we are making—war first, war second, war wholly! It is not politics. It is not constitutional making. It is not the decision of legal niceties. These are not the business of government as toward the South. It is war, absolute, terrible and immeasurable war.

The South has organized on the fact of slavery and rights on that issue, pure and simple. The North must organize on the doctrine of liberty and fight right through on that issue, pure and simple.

The South sacrifices everything that conflicts with her central idea. The North must do the same. The South is not ashamed of slavery. The North must be ashamed of liberty.

Under such circumstances, we hold that it was unwise to call for three hundred thousand volunteers. The day has gone by for that. The administration should have drafted half a million of men for instant service, and half a million more as a reserve. It will waste months of time and spend millions of money, and encourage growing discontent, and expend precious popular enthusiasm, and then be obliged to draft. It was not prudent. The people might be discontented. To this is replied—it was and is necessary. The people must consent to that or dismemberment!
